From the Chair of the Board of Directors

As a lifelong member of the community, I have attended local schools and supported public education. While I had family support for my educational journey, not all students are as fortunate. At Washtenaw Community College, many students receive support through WCC Foundation scholarships. As chair of the Board of Directors of the WCC Foundation, I am honored to represent the volunteers who help to provide support to deserving students.

I am delighted to share some wonderful news with you about student scholarships at WCC. The Board of Directors voted to increase the amount awarded to each student who receives a scholarship. In recent years, the maximum scholarship award was $800 per term. For the current Fall term, the maximum award is $1,000. This increase will help each awardee to meet the financial obligations of their education.

It is gratifying to see students who come to WCC succeed in their chosen area of study, and earn a certificate or degree. And it's even more fulfilling to know that donors support the students through gifts to the Foundation.

For 30 years, we have helped WCC students achieve their dreams. Thank you for your support!

Sincerely,

Betsy Petoskey
Chair, WCC Foundation Board of Directors

Letter from the President

This school year marks the 50th anniversary of Washtenaw Community College. It is an important milestone, and we will celebrate it with events and gatherings throughout the year and into 2016.

Many things have changed over the last 50 years, but our mission has not. We remain an affordable college where students come first. We are a valued resource in this region, opening our doors and providing a lifetime of learning opportunities to more than 20,000 students a year.

The WCC Foundation plays a very special part in this process, and for that, we cannot thank you enough.

With your gifts to the Foundation, you are changing lives. You couldn't ask for a more noble cause. The dollars you contribute provide the stepping stones needed for our students to achieve their hopes and dreams.

Your dollars are more than just money – they support childcare, tuition, scholarships, a chance for a career change, books, and life enrichment opportunities -- I could go on and on. But what lies beneath all of your efforts is the chance to make a difference in a student's life. And that's exactly what you're doing – making a difference, one student at a time.

With gratitude,

Dr. Rose B. Bellanca, Ed.D.
President, Washtenaw Community College

Scholarship Recipient

Holly Munker, a mother of two, was tending bar two nights a week when she was admitted to Washtenaw Community College's radiography program in 2011.

She was also pregnant. "Taking a full class load and taking care of the family was a lot of work," she said, "but WCC has a well-known radiography program, and my education here will help open doors for me."

Holly persevered and graduated last June. She is continuing her education at WCC in an advanced certificate program focused on CT scans.

She will complete the program in April 2016.

Holly is looking forward to working in radiography, and she attributes her success in part to scholarships from the WCC Foundation, which she received the past four years. "I didn't have time to work while taking a full load of classes and clinicals," Holly said. "All of my spare time has been spent studying. Without the help from the Foundation, I wouldn't have made it this far."

"I've learned so much from my students. They're amazing!"

–Sally Adler

When Sally Adler began teaching at Washtenaw Community College more than 20 years ago, she discovered the job she always wanted. Over the years, she's learned that building relationships with students is not only an important aspect of her job but it's also the most rewarding. "I spend a lot of time with my students, and I know their problems," she said.

There have been times when students have confided in Adler about their difficulties in making ends meet – an issue Adler encountered during her own college experience. "I know what it's like to be hungry and barely scraping by," she said. She felt the need to do something to help, so she established the SALLY ADLER CHILDCARE SCHOLARSHIP ENDOWMENT FUND.

As an instructor, Adler teaches her students about child care, development and education. According to Adler, she's not the only one who is teaching in her classroom. "I've learned so much from my students," she said. "They're amazing!"

As a social worker for the State of Michigan, Martha McClatchey worked in specialized adoptions with a goal of finding homes for permanent wards moving through the foster care system. Through her work, she met and cared for hundreds of children. Her love and compassion for children led her to create the McCLATCHY FAMILY SCHOLARSHIP FUND. Per her request, the McClatchey Scholarship will be awarded each year to former or current foster children.

When asked why she chose Washtenaw Community College for the scholarship, McClatchey said, "WCC provides educational opportunities for everyone whether seeking the basics of a formal academic start or the technical training necessary for an immediate job."

After her social work career, McClatchey joined the Department of Student Services in the College of Literature Science and Arts at the University of Michigan, and worked with incoming and continuing students. She has high praise for the students who transferred into U-M from WCC. "I met with students who came to Michigan from community colleges all over the state," McClatchey said. "The best-prepared students came from WCC."

"WCC provides educational opportunities for everyone."

Many high school students have their senior pictures taken before the start of their last year of school. They spend time finding the right clothing and the right settings for the photos. They also spend money on the photographer. When Danny Friedman learned how much senior pictures would cost, he balked and said that the money could be better spent helping a student pay for community college. Danny asked that his photo fees, together with his savings from work and Bar Mitzvah gifts, be given to the Washtenaw Community College Foundation for a student scholarship. His parents, Rich and Joanna Friedman, agreed and offered to match his gift amount. Together they created the FRIEDMAN FAMILY SCHOLARSHIP.

“As he approached college, Danny became increasingly uncomfortable with the realization that he could afford to go to any school that admits him, while other kids couldn’t afford any higher education,” said his mother Joanna. “He wanted to do what he could to make a difference rather than simply ignoring such a glaring problem.”

This fall, the WCC Foundation will award the first Friedman Family Scholarship and it will definitely make a difference for a WCC student.

“He wanted to do what he could to make a difference...”

–Joanna Friedman

Beth Gannon devoted her life to improving children’s lives. A mother to 23—eight her own and 15 from troubled families—she was a caretaker for children well into her 80s.

She and her husband Pat, a self-employed builder, worked hard to support those 23 children. Beth also worked afternoons and evenings at the Ypsilanti Post Office as a mail sorter for 12 years when Pat was unable to work due to illness.

Pat passed away in 1978 and Beth in 2002. Her devotion to the next generation is cemented in her children’s minds, and they are continuing her legacy with an endowment in Beth’s name.

Since 2006, the BETH GANNON ENDOWMENT has supported single parents who are students at Washtenaw Community College. Her daughter, Jill Beauchamp, a former faculty member at WCC, was moved to donate to the WCC Foundation after learning a student’s financial difficulties caused her to drop out. After Jill and her husband Dan funded five scholarships, they decided to fund an endowment with the support of extended members of the Gannon family. They initiated a variety of ways to raise money, including a family fun run.

In 1997, when Beth Gannon was 80. The Ann Arbor News featured a story about her, and noted that she was mothering her last child, then a sophomore at Ypsilanti High School. She told reporter Robert L. Romaker that she stayed busy with gardening and plants when her child was at school. “I’ve devoted my life to nurturing God’s creations,” she is quoted. “I started with kids and I will end up with plants.” Little did she know that her legacy would help enrich and grow the lives of countless students to come.

Little did she know that her legacy would help enrich and grow the lives of countless students to come.

“WCC is an amazing resource in the community. We think it’s a great place to put our support.”

–Roddy Wares

Roddy Wares and her husband Allen Newman are devotees of the Peace Neighborhood Center. Allen served as president of the board and is currently on the advisory board, while Roddy worked as the development director and still coordinates the annual fundraiser. For them, supporting Washtenaw Community College students seemed a natural fit with Peace’s mission of providing community services, and so the RODDY WARES AND ALLEN NEWMAN SCHOLARSHIP FUND was created.

“I see WCC as a critical link for so many people,” Roddy said. “It really is an interface for people who need training and support. They can go from a place where they’re stuck, to a place where their potential can really grow.”

“Perhaps the biggest similarity Peace and WCC share is access”, Roddy added. Just like Peace, the College gives people without privilege ways to succeed. It fits into our personal mission of caring for the community.”

Overall, “I think WCC does a fabulous job,” Roddy said. “It’s the answer for so many, for those who want to get into the workforce or go to a four-year college or university. It’s just an amazing resource in the community, and we really love it. We think it’s a great place to put our support.”

“They felt strongly about providing educational opportunities for their children.”

–Michael Finney

Michael Finney is well-known as the first president and CEO of Ann Arbor SPARK, an organization dedicated to economic development, the growth of companies and the creation of jobs in the local community. Finney has also contributed to Washtenaw Community College’s growth and development by serving as a member of the Foundation Board of Directors.

Michael attributes his success and dedication to community to his parents, Arthur and Laura Finney. Arthur worked in an automotive manufacturing plant in Flint, which was home to General Motors’ Buick and Chevrolet divisions and Laura was a homemaker. While neither of them were high school graduates, they felt strongly about providing educational opportunities for their children. To honor his parents and their belief in the power of education and to help students at WCC, Michael created the ARTHUR AND LAURA FINNEY ENDOWMENT FUND.

Washtenaw Community College President Rose Bellanca is living proof of the life-changing experiences that can happen at a community college. As a high school student, Bellanca had her heart set on being a teacher, but she was tracked into going to secretarial school upon graduation. Determined to become a teacher, she pursued an associate degree at Macomb Community College (MCC) which led her to get her bachelor’s degree and eventually propelled her into a teaching career. She taught at Chippewa Valley Schools, MCC and Wayne State University, where she also earned her doctorate in education.

“A community college experience changes lives,” Bellanca said. “Educational dreams are realized, businesses are started, skills are refined, new languages are learned, and the list goes on. As I’ve said on many occasions, there are no dead ends at a community college—only paths of opportunity to follow, which weave into the fabric of healthy and vibrant communities.”

Belief in the life-changing effect of the community college experience inspired Bellanca and her husband to create the ROSE AND JOE BELLANCA SCHOLARSHIP FUND. “To me, community colleges are a very special place because they helped make my dream come true,” Bellanca said.

“There are no dead ends at a community college—only paths of opportunity to follow.”

Tim and Julie Kissel believe in the power of education. Julie is an instructor at Washtenaw Community College and Tim, a former teacher, works as a school administrator. In their roles, the Kissels touch the lives of students every day. Three years ago, they made the decision to support students financially through a scholarship fund at WCC. Around the time they were working to establish the scholarship, Tim's uncle Alvin Temme passed away. The Kissels chose to honor his memory by creating THE ALVIN C. TEMME ENDOWMENT FUND. Like the Kissels, Alvin was an educator; he taught horticulture and agriculture at the Pendleton Reformatory (now the Indiana Pendleton Correctional Facility) for forty years.

"We feel so fortunate to be able to give back and support the students at WCC," Julie said. "Alvin appreciated kindness and we want to remember that always through our giving."

"Devoted educators create a legacy of improving students' lives."

Bob and Jean Chapman know exactly how integral Washtenaw Community College can be in changing students' lives—they've experienced it firsthand.

Jean worked to support her husband as he finished college, and then she stayed at home to raise their three boys. But in the mid-1980s, when her children grew a little more independent and were in junior high and high school, she decided she wanted to pursue her own education again. She hadn't been to college in over a decade. She thought WCC might be the right place to prepare for earning a bachelor's degree.

"I loved it," Jean said. "I loved the teachers, the students I met and the education I received. The smaller classes were warm and welcoming and I had all the support I needed. There was a strong community atmosphere because everyone was in the same boat, trying to pursue a goal."

Jean eventually transferred to St. Thomas University in St. Paul, Minnesota and earned her degree in social work. But WCC holds a special place in her heart and for that reason, Jean established the JEAN G. CHAPMAN ENDOWMENT FUND. "I support WCC wholeheartedly," she said. "I know what it did for me, and I've heard testimony from others whose experiences are very much like mine."

Bob served on the WCC Foundation Board of Directors for two terms, and he also served as chair. He knows the college is a place that holds many stories similar to his wife's. "I really am a strong supporter of what WCC brings to our community, the value it brings and the lives that it changes," he said.

"I am a strong supporter of what WCC brings to our community, the value it brings and the lives it changes."

–Bob Chapman

"I wanted to thank the faculty for their partnership during my time at WCC."

–Gunder Myran

Gunder Myran was Washtenaw Community College's second president, serving from 1975 to 1998. During his presidency, he considered his wife Marliiss to be WCC's first lady. "She was my partner, my cheerleader and my supporter," he said. "She was very involved in activities on campus, as well as entertaining College guests in our home." To celebrate Marliiss' contributions to the College during his tenure as president, Myran created the GUNDER AND MARLISS MYRAN ENDOWMENT FUND.

As president, Gunder enjoyed working with the faculty of the College. In gratitude for those relationships, he designated the fund be used to support technological advances and innovative approaches to learning and teaching.

"I recognized that there were unmet needs and that I could contribute a fund for faculty innovation," he said. "I wanted to thank the faculty for their partnership during my time at WCC."

Endowments may be established with a minimum gift or pledge of $10,000. They will support students in perpetuity with up to 5 percent of the interest earned being spent each year. The following annual funds and endowments were begun in 2014-2015:

This year, Washtenaw Community College celebrates its 50th anniversary—a half century of developing students who are able to enrich their lives and the local community. There is no doubt that the college has played a crucial role in the growth of Ann Arbor as the thriving educational center it is today.

As a donor to the WCC Foundation, you are an integral part of this story. Your choice to support WCC students has greatly impacted countless lives and the community at large. The Foundation, and the students, are deeply grateful for your generosity and advocacy of access, success and innovation.
